THE AIA COLORADO 2004 ANNUAL REPORT IS AVAILABLE AT WWW.AIACOLORADO.ORG

2005 is already proving to be another exciting year for AIA Colorado. We continue to improve our new website and have just completed publication of our inaugural issue of AIA Architect Colorado to showcase design excellence by AIA Colorado architects. The balance of this year looks just as exciting with events such as our Design Conference at The Broadmoor Hotel October 27th-29th! This year's theme, "2020 Vision" will explore the future of the architectural profession and AIA Architects as visionaries and leaders in our Colorado communities.

ADVOCACY

AIA Colorado established a task force to review the current Architects Licensing Law and develop a comprehensive document outlining specific recommendations about the law in preparation for the Sunset Review process.

AIA Colorado's lobbyist developed and assisted in implementing a strategy plan for how AIA Colorado architects could become more involved in the 2004 state house and senate elections.

AIA Colorado Government affairs committee worked with ARCPac to solicit donations and distribute campaign funds to ten winning state legislators.

AIA Denver endorsed the SCFD re-authorization and FastTracks ballot amendments which won overwhelming approval by voters in November.

AIA Denver worked to strengthen their relationship with Mayor Hickenlooper and Denver City Council members.

AIA Colorado South members became actively involved with the Colorado Springs Arts Commission, Historic Preservation Board, City Charter Committee, Land Use Review Advisory Board and the Partnership for Community Design.

COMMUNITY

AIA Colorado created a Professional Development Committee in cooperation with the University of Colorado, College of Architecture & Planning to enhance career development opportunities for students, interns and architects.

AIA Colorado South formed a partnership with the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center to host a number of events including a monthly Architects Roundtable, screening of "My Architect" and an open gallery event.

AIA Colorado North sponsored "Northern Exposures," a public art show showcasing art by AIA Architects throughout the state.

AIA Denver worked to raise the profile of our profession through public relations by sponsoring of programs such as Doors Open Denver, community planning charrettes led by the Urban Design Committee and volunteer efforts like Box City for kids.

AIA Colorado West co-sponsored monthly Green Building Group seminars in cooperation with the Eagle Valley Alliance for Sustainability.

KNOWLEDGE

AIA Colorado created a new graphically-enhanced, user-friendly website with a searchable, up to date calendar highlighting upcoming programs, events and forums - this website is now being used as an effective & comprehensive communication tool for members and the public.

AIA Colorado developed a new statewide four-color quarterly design magazine, AIA Architect Colorado to showcase design excellence by AIA Colorado Architects and is distributed to AIA members, legislators, media, public officials, owners and key members of allied organizations.

AIA strengthened the relationship with the University of Colorado-Denver & University of Colorado-Boulder through joint programs and Board representation.

AIA Colorado's Design Conference in 2004, Edges of Integration, delivered a non-traditional perspective on the future of the practice of architecture, creating an on-going dialogue and featured speakers that provided information and studies on the way our brains react to space, the concept of virtual architecture and alternative methods looking at a future of highly flexible collaborative practice models.

VALUE

AIA Colorado and the four local chapters continued to support membership with programs that provide the tools to unlock the creative potential to allow AIA Colorado Architects to make a difference as leaders in our industry and community. Over 155 hours of continuing education were offered throughout the state.

AIA worked to strengthen training for board leaders throughout the state through strategic planning retreats and board training workshops.

AIA Colorado created a Governance & Structure task force to begin working to evaluate and optimize staff support to the local chapters and review financial risk & responsibilities between the state component and local chapters.

AIA Colorado worked to strengthen the financial stability of the organization through a modified annual budgeting process. Furthermore, the state component adopted a reserves policy to help insure long-term financial solidity.

AIA Colorado's four local chapters remain financially healthy.

INTRODUCTION

AIA Colorado is proud to provide you this 2005-2006 Firm Profile and Membership Directory as part of your member benefits in AIA. This publication is a valuable resource to connect you with your fellow AIA Colorado members, AIA committees, staff and leadership. This directory, together with our Web site at www.aiacolorado.org, provides members with the current contacts to access the wealth of resources AIA Colorado has to offer.

The AIA Colorado offices are located in the heart of downtown Denver at 1515 Arapahoe Street, maintaining an important urban presence on behalf of our members. Our staff serves the membership and the public with diligence and professionalism, providing member services, contract documents, maintenance of the always-important job board and coordinating local chapter events, including the design awards gala and continuing-education programs.

During the term of this publication, the AIA leadership has made a special request of our membership. As many of you may be aware, next year the Colorado State Architect's Licensure Act will sunset, putting into play recommendations, revisions and exemptions that will ultimately affect all licensed architects in the state. We need members to use this directory as a networking tool to communicate with each other and organize the state's AIA professionals a strong, united voice. AIA Colorado represents the licensed architects in the state collectively, but it's our individual members reaching out to their respective state representatives that will make all the difference. Please contact the AIA Colorado office information on how to effectively contribute to this important advocacy issue.

One of the indirect benefits of being an active member of AIA is that of fellowship. Getting to know other members, sharing ideas, collaborating in projects and building genuine friendships that grow from communication with your peers can be as valuable as the more obvious direct benefits AIA has to offer. It's important to stay connected to your profession and we hope this directory supports our members in that endeavor. It can be an integral tool in your efforts to be an engaged member of the Colorado Component of the American Institute of Architects.

This publication would not be possible without the strong support of the sponsors represented in the Buyers' Guide. Their investment in our organization is important to our future success. Please acknowledge their contribution by considering their services in your future business activities.

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) was established in 1920 to help member boards:

- Carry out their duties
- Foster the enactment of uniform architectural laws
- Develop examinations and establish standards for certification requirements in education and training
- To perfect their procedures for verifying the qualifications of applicants and determining their eligibility for certification
- Establish and maintain reciprocal registration between states having registration laws

The NCARB is a non-profit corporation with all legally constituted boards of architecture in the United States as members, including the Colorado Board of Examiners of Architects.

To be eligible for NCARB certification, architects must submit satisfactory evidence that they comply with the standard for education, training, examination and character and have been registered by a member board.

The NCARB will, upon request of an individual architect, secure, authenticate and record factual data of the applicant's education, training, practice and character. This record will be forwarded to any state board upon request of the applicant.

Certification shall be given to an applicant holding a council record verifying that the applicant has complied with the council's standards of education, training, practice and character; and that the applicant has passed an examination conforming to the council's standards of content, extent and length of time.

Certification by the NCARB is recommendation to all registration authorities that registration be granted to the holder without further examination. Most board members accept NCARB certification as conclusive evidence of an architect's eligibility of registration. It is, however, not a national registration.

Complete information on compiling a council record and obtaining council certification can be obtained from:

What Do Architects Do?

You have a vision of what you want. Now you need to make that vision a reality. Here's how architects can assist you:

Architects See the Big Picture

Architects are specially educated to assist you in defining what you want to build, presenting options you might never have considered and helping you get the most for your valuable investment. They don't just design four walls and a roof — they create total environments, both interiors and exteriors, that are functional and exciting places in which to work and live.

Architects Solve Problems Creatively

Architects are trained problem solvers. Need more room for your growing family? Architects can show you how to enlarge your home so you won't have to move. Have a limited budget? Architects can also propose ways to get more for your investment than you imagined possible.

Architects Help You Get the Most from Your Construction Dollar

Architects can reduce building costs, decrease your home's energy needs and increase its future resale value through good design.

Architects Make Your Life Easier

Building is a long process that is often messy and disruptive, particularly if you're living in the space while it's under construction. Your architect represents you! Your architect looks out for your interests and smoothes the process, helps find qualified construction contractors and visits the work-site to help protect you against work that's not according to plan.

Speak with an architect who is a member of AIA Colorado at the earliest stage of the design process. Use the 2005/2006 Firm Profile and Directory to reach all the AIA members located in Colorado. Another resource available to you is an architectural database that contains the names of our member firms. You can find this by visiting our web site at www.aiacolorado.org.

Why an AIA Architect?

Like doctors and lawyers, architects are licensed professionals. The title "architect" may be used only by an individual who possesses a state license to practice architecture. They are the only professionals in the construction industry who are ethically bound to represent you, the building owner.

Professional qualifications generally include:

- College degree from an accredited school of architecture, requiring five or more years of professional studies
- Three years of internship under the supervision of licensed architects
- Passage of a rigorous five-day examination

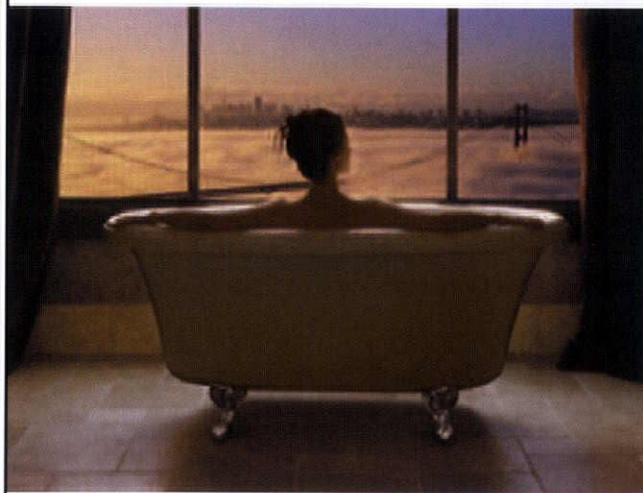

Only those professionals who have fulfilled these requirements or other requirements as stipulated by each individual state, may legally call themselves architects and practice architecture in the jurisdiction granting the license. Individuals may be registered or licensed in more than one state by means of reciprocal licensing agreements among the states.

Get the Real Thing - Look for "AIA"

Look for the AIA initials after the name of any architect you consider for your project. AIA architects remain current with professional standards through continuing education and subscribe to a code of ethics and professional conduct that assure clients, the public and colleagues of their dedication to high standards in professional practice.

AIA Colorado represents architects and others statewide and unifies the four local chapters of The American Institute of Architects within Colorado. AIA Colorado seeks to:

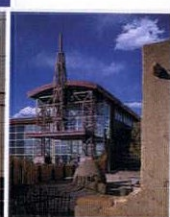

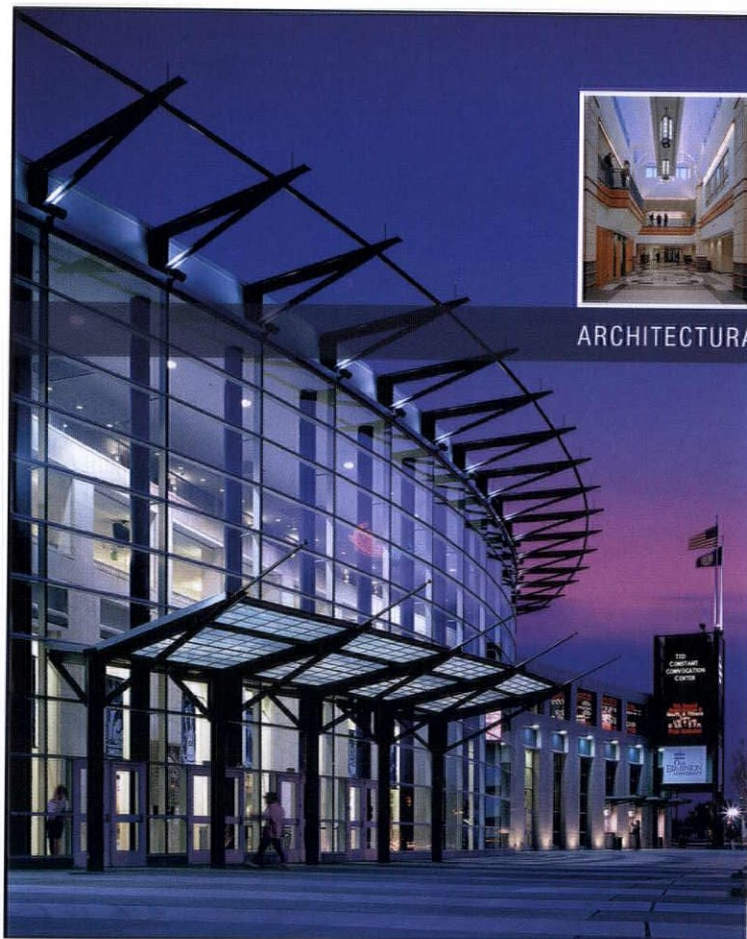

- Unite the architects of Colorado in fellowship.
- Promote the aesthetic, scientific and business practice of architecture.
- Advance architectural standards of continuing education, training and practice.
- Build relationships among clients, the construction industry and architects.

AIA Colorado believes that an important purpose of architecture is to create a vision that improves the built environment. This vision is vital to the advancement of the living standards of our communities and provides a service of ever-increasing value to society.

AIA Colorado provides architect referrals, lobbies the Colorado legislature, offers architectural employment information and sells AIA contracts and publications. The organization hosts an annual conference, usually between October and December. AIA Colorado provides support for all the chapters within the state. It is a professional organization for the design profession and classified as a "not-for-profit."

History of AIA Colorado

The Colorado Association of Architects was organized in 1890 and the elected officers were: Robert S. Roeschlaub, President; Harold W. Baerresen, Vice President; Eugene R. Rice, Secretary; and Frank E. Edbrooke, Treasurer. The same men were re-elected to office at the Second Annual Meeting held December 21, 1891. The main topic of discussion at that event was submitting an application for a charter as a chapter of The American Institute of Architects. The charter was received April 4, 1892 and included the states of Colorado, Wyoming and the territory of New Mexico. It wasn't until 1947 that each state had its own chapter.

AIA Colorado Committees, Task Forces & Coordinators

The following outlines just a portion of the committees and services available to members of AIA Colorado. The AIA Colorado Board of Directors encourages your active participation in AIA at the local, state and national levels. Your involvement means fellowship with your peers, furthering your career and continuing your education. Volunteer your expertise—join a committee, sponsor an intern, submit an article for use in our quarterly publication, run for a Board seat, suggest a new service and attend the annual Design Conference. Your participation and feedback are welcome and necessary for the continued success of this membership body. Many other committees exist at the local chapter level as well. Please refer to the AIA Colorado Web site at www.aiacolorado.org for a complete list of all committees active in each chapter.

AIA/AGC/ACEC Design & Construction Coalition:

Chair: Bud Starker

AIA Staff Contact: Leslie Acosta

In 1997, AIA Colorado, Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Colorado and The American Council of Engineering Companies of Colorado (ACEC) sought an agreement to achieve a partnership for the purpose of enhancing relationships among the three organizations and their members. The Boards of Directors of each organization are committed to developing a detailed understanding of the concerns that confront the members of each organization as they proceed with the design and construction of projects and carefully analyze the challenges that the three organizations have in accomplishing their goals. Chairmanship of this committee rotates between the three collateral organizations on an annual basis.

The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado

Treasurer/Secretary: Robert K. Fuller II, AIA

AIA Staff Contact: Sonia Riggs

The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado, awards scholarships and grants to architectural students, faculty members, architects and AIA components each spring.

Communications Advisory Board

Chair: John Yonushewski, AIA

AIA Staff Contact: Leslie Acosta

The Communications Advisory Board (CAB) has been formed to serve as the nucleus of strategic communication planning for the state and its four local chapter components. Members of this board function as an accessible source of information and as a tool for architectural professionals, supporting personal and professional development. The communications tools that are continuously being enhanced to target all AIA Colorado needs are the Web site, weekly e-news and the quarterly publication. CAB reports directly to the AIA Colorado Board.

Design Awards Program

Staff Contact: Melanie Sala

The Awards Program seeks to honor works of distinction by AIA Colorado members and bring to the public's attention the outstanding architectural services provided by members of AIA Colorado. Colorado Design Award winners are announced during the annual Design Conference.

Fellows Task Force

Chair: Gary L. Desmond, FAIA

The Fellows Task Force was formed in 1992 and assists local chapters in nominating their outstanding members to be considered for election to the College of Fellows. The Task Force helps those architects nominated in developing their submissions to the Jury of Fellows.

Finance Committee

2005 Chair: John E. Yonushewski, AIA

2006 Chair: Cheri Gerou, AIA

AIA Staff Contact: Sonia Riggs

This committee is responsible for the financial stability of AIA Colorado. The committee develops long-range financial goals and makes recommendations to the Board regarding budgets and other areas of financial planning. Membership dues, the annual Design Conference, support from sponsors and document sales generate most of the revenue necessary for the operating budget of AIA Colorado.

Government Affairs

2005 Chair: Kin DuBois, AIA
2006 Chair: Mike Wisneski, AIA
AIA Staff Contact: Sonia Riggs

The Government Affairs Committee's (GAC) primary goal is to increase the legislators' awareness of architects, architecture and the AIA. This committee meets on the first Friday of each month at 1:00 p.m. at the AIA Colorado office to discuss matters relating to the State Board of Examiners of Architects and legislation at the federal and state levels. During the 120-day Colorado legislative session, the Legislative Affairs subcommittee meets weekly to review and discuss potential legislation that could affect the profession of architecture. Because AIA National sponsors key legislation infrequently, the state component contract-lobbyist, Jerry Johnson — assists AIA Colorado in the monitoring process, as well as providing on-site lobbying at the Capitol.

Intern Development Program

State Coordinator: Cedra Ginsburg, AIA
AIA Staff Contact: Montelle Taméz

The Intern Development Program (IDP) continues to gain momentum in Colorado. The IDP Coordinator and AIA Colorado staff sent out more than 100 packets last year. The coordinator provides programs at CU Boulder and CU Denver, as well as firms interested in the merits of the IDP program. The coordinator also nominates firms for the AIA/NCARB/IDP Firm of the Year award.

Membership

Chair: Chris Green, AIA
AIA Staff Contact: Montelle Taméz

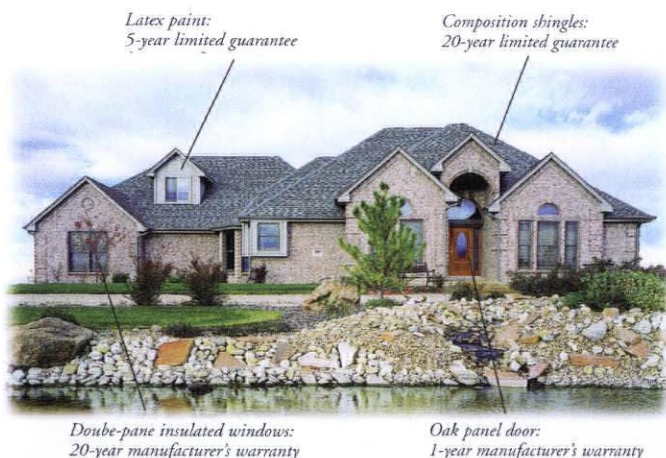

Successful and continuous membership expansion efforts are essential to ensure that the AIA truly represents the profession. Recruit a friend — invite them to a meeting or chapter activity and get them involved in AIA Colorado.

Nominating Committee

Chairman: Cheri Gerou, AIA
AIA Staff Contact: Sonia Riggs

This committee is composed of at least five AIA Colorado architects, selected on the basis of one representative from each AIA Colorado chapter (appointed each year at the August meeting of the Board of Directors) and chaired by the current President-Elect. The Nominating Committee recommends at least two nominees to run for each officer's position on the AIA Colorado Board of Directors.

AIA College of Fellows

The American Institute of Architects bestows the recognition of Fellowship for achievement in architecture on members who have contributed notably to the advancement of the profession of architecture. With the exception of the Gold Medal, fellowship is the highest honor the AIA can bestow on a member. It is conferred on members with at least 10 years of membership who have made significant contributions to the aesthetic, scientific and practical efficiency of the profession; to the standards of architectural education, training and practice; to the building industry through leadership of the AIA and other related professional organizations; to the advancement of the living standards of people through their improved environment and to society through significant public service.

Those advanced to fellowship can use "FAIA" after their names in recognition of their contributions in design, education, research or public service.

The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado

Since the first $600 scholarship was presented in 1961, the Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado has awarded more than $750,000 in scholarships, grants and other prizes to more than 300 students, architects and teachers. The awards program totals $40,000 from income received through investments, donations and memorials. This figure is more than 10 times the amount of the original Trust Fund in 1934.

During the past decade, individual architects and firms have made substantial contributions to the Education Foundation as memorials. Individuals and organizations allied with the construction industry have also made significant donations in the past. Frequently, donors send a contribution to the fund instead of flowers to memorialize a deceased loved one or friend.

Over the past few years, the foundation has increased its assistance to AIA Colorado and its four chapters so that the AIA can conduct progressive Professional Education Programs. Requests for such grants should be submitted to The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA COLORADO 3320 East Second Avenue, Denver, CO, 80206. We are continually seeking new funds in the way of endowments, donations, budgeted items, memorials, etc., from the chapters and the membership at large.

The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado was born in 1934 out of the devotion of five men to the practice of architecture. On January 23, 1934, Robert K. Fuller, FAIA, announced on behalf of himself and four other men, the creation of a special Trust Fund "to advance the interest of the profession of architecture in the State of Colorado."

The Foundation was conceived a decade earlier by Robert K. Fuller, FAIA; William E. Fisher, FAIA; George H. Williamson, FAIA; William Bowman, AIA; and Fred Montjoy, AIA. Their vision had long been "to provide an instrument whereby, someday, sufficient income would be realized to be able to award scholarships, grants, prizes, etc. to the betterment of the profession." (All "quotes" are from the original Articles of Incorporation.)

The first aim of the foundation was quite modest: the assets were to be "held intact and allowed to grow" until the principal would be large enough to ensure a "good annual return therefrom." The founders hoped that the amount in the fund would serve as a "nucleus" that would increase in value and, now that it was formally established, also attract additional donations. By 1944, however, no new contributions had come forward and of the five founding fathers of the fund, only the fund's chairman, Robert K. Fuller, survived.

On December 18, 1944, the foundation was transferred to the Colorado Chapter, AIA (predecessor of the Colorado State Society of the AIA and now AIA Colorado) as a Chapter Investment Fund. Robert K. Fuller was designated as its Permanent Trustee. By early 1961, the fund had achieved its first aim "... a good annual return." It was then deemed necessary to incorporate as a separate tax-free entity to be known as the Educational Fund, Colorado Chapter, AIA. On February 16, 1961, the foundation was incorporated as a separate tax-free, non-profit corporation, under that name. Its broad purpose, as reported in the December 1961 issue of the Colorado Chapter, AIA newsletter, "The Addenda," was (and remains today) "to advance education in architecture by granting of scholarships, prizes and financial aid to deserving students in architecture and to teachers or architects interested in research projects directly related and of value to the architectural profession."

At its November 1961 meeting at the old Boulder Country Club, the Colorado Chapter, AIA awarded James E. Koentop, a fifth-year architectural engineering student at the University of Colorado, the $600 William E. Fisher Memorial Scholarship. This was the first scholarship awarded by the Educational Fund, Colorado Chapter, AIA. It had taken only 27 years for the five founders' original dream (to be able to make such awards for the betterment of the profession) to come true.

Robert K. Fuller, FAIA, died in 1966 and the Colorado Chapter, AIA asked his son Kenneth R. Fuller, FAIA to assume the responsibility of the position of Permanent Member of the Board of Trustees. Upon the death of Kenneth in 1998, his son Robert K. Fuller II, AIA, became the third Permanent Member of the Board of Trustees. In 1969, following the restructuring of the AIA in Colorado into a State Society with two chapters (now four) the fund's name was legally changed to the Educational Fund, Colorado Society of Architects, AIA. In 2001 the trustees reincorporated with updated Articles and Bylaws and a new name that reflected the Fund's mission ... The Architectural Education Foundation, AIA Colorado.

AIA Continuing Education System: Survival Guide

What is AIA/CES?

It is a continuing education system developed by the AIA to emphasize learning and record participation in professional learning activities. AIA/CES enables architects to keep current, master new knowledge and skills, plan for the future and responsibly meet the role society entrusts to a professional. The program also allows members to fulfill a requirement for AIA membership and meet any state mandatory continuing education requirement. In this role, the program has the potential to be a primary force in the improvement and revitalization of our profession.

What is my annual learning unit (LU) requirement?

All active AIA members must successfully complete 18 learning unit (LU) hours each year, with at least 8 of the 18 LU hours relating to health, safety and/or welfare (HSW).

- A member who fails to meet the annual requirement will be given a one-year grace period. Any credit earned in the following year will apply toward the deficit. During the first nine months of the grace period, members are able to report retroactively any activities that were completed in the previous year.
- A member who exceeds the annual requirement may carry up to 18 LU hours (including eight hours of HSW) over to the next year. Carryover credit can be used for one year only; it is not cumulative. Only the number of credits needed to fulfill the annual requirement for the following year may be carried over. Extra credit may not be carried past the one-year limit.

NOTE: Most state licensing boards do not allow carryover and deficit credit. States have strict continuing education timeframes and credits must be earned within them.

What is a learning unit (LU) hour?

The AIA records continuing education credit in learning unit hours (LU hours). A one-LU hour activity is equal to one contact hour. An LU hour is not a continuing education unit (CEU). One tenth of a CEU (.1) is equal to one contact hour, which is equal to one LU hour. In other words, one CEU is equal to 10 contact hours or 10 LU hours.

How does AIA/CES work?

Members can earn LU hours by attending programs offered by AIA/CES registered providers or through self-reporting independent activities.

What is an AIA/CES Registered Provider Program?

The AIA has developed a network of more than 2500 educational providers made up of AIA chapters, affiliate organizations, firms, manufacturers, universities, non-profit organization and government agencies. These educational providers offer more than 25,000 programs each year.

Programs offered by AIA/CES providers are filed with AIA/CES Records in Oklahoma. Within 14 days of a program's conclusion, AIA/CES providers verify and report the program attendees to AIA/CES Records. For non-AIA members, the AIA/CES Provider will provide a certificate of completion upon request. The complete activities are then posted on AIA members' transcripts. Online transcripts are available at www.aia.org/conted/.

What are Self-Reported Activities?

Members must now indicate whether the activity they are reporting is self-designed or a structured, self-reported program.

Self-Designed Activity

This type of learning activity is organized by the member specifically to meet his or her individual needs. A self-designed activity frequently involves more than one type of medium or method such as research, reading, interviewing subject experts, listening to audio tapes and/or viewing videos. To determine what qualifies for self-reporting, ask yourself the following questions:

- 1) Is this a planned learning activity?
- 2) Is this activity intended to be educational or operational?
- 3) Are you acquiring new knowledge or are you sharing your knowledge with others?
- 4) How will you apply this new knowledge to your practice?
This method is not acceptable for health, safety and welfare (HSW) credit. Some state licensing boards will not accept this type of reporting for mandatory continuing education (MCE) requirements. (Recommended minimum of three hours)

Structured Self-Reported Program

This is a structured activity offered by an organized, third-party, non-CES provider. Documentation of attendance/participation will usually be required as a supplement when reporting this activity to meet a state licensure requirement. For members who self-report a structured activity, the AIA is not able to assist in acquiring any support documentation that may be required by a state licensing board MCE audit.

To be eligible for credit, self-reported activities must be planned educational activities that provide you with new knowledge that can be applied toward the practice of architecture. Members should complete the AIA/CES Self-Report Form and submit it to AIA/CES Records at the University of Oklahoma. Be sure to specify which type of learning activity you are reporting so the data can be entered accurately into your transcript. Members calculate LU hours for self-reported activities by reporting the number of hours spent in architecture-related learning. Think in terms of billable hours applied to learning.

How do I submit Self-Reported Activities?

Members can self-report activities in two ways.

- 1) Members can complete the AIA/CES Self-Report Form and submit it to AIA/CES Records at the University of Oklahoma. To obtain form contact AIA/CES Records at 1.800.605.8229.
- 2) Members can submit self-reported activities online at www.aia.org/conted. Log into the CES Transcript Login, located on the right hand side, by providing your membership number. AIA/CES Self-Report Forms can be accessed through the transcript page.

Be sure to specify which type of learning activity you are reporting so the data can be entered accurately into your transcript. Members calculate LU hours for self-reported activities by reporting the number of hours spent in architecture-related learning. Think in terms of billable hours applied to learning.

Is there a limit to how many credits I can self-report in one year?

No. You can self-report as many structured and self-designed activities as you like. Remember, only credits reported in the appropriate method will be applied to your transcript. Follow the procedures outlined in the above paragraphs. Members are advised to check with State Licensing Boards as certain states WILL NOT accept self-reported continuing education as a viable means of education for license renewal.

Health, Safety & Welfare

How does "health, safety and welfare" (HSW) tie into CES?

The AIA requires members to earn eight of the basic LU hours requirements in the area of HSW. The percentage of HSW content in any HSW-related activity must be a minimum of 75 percent to qualify a program or educational event for HSW credit. This accomplishes three goals:

- 1) To ensure that HSW-related programs have a real relevance to our members
- 2) To eliminate any question of whether the content of a program was actually HSW-related
- 3) To protect AIA members with state mandatory continuing education (MCE) requirements

Can I self-report HSW hours?

Yes-but with restrictions. You may self-report any structured activity that is HSW related and receive HSW credit for it. In other words, the activity must be developed and presented to you by a third-party organization. You cannot receive HSW credit for any self-designed activity. For example, even though code research is HSW in nature, if it is a self-designed activity, the AIA does not allow HSW credit for it. This policy was adopted to ensure quality-control guidelines are enforced and to comply with state licensing board requirements.

Can I receive HSW hours from Online & Magazine Education classes and workshops? (i.e., AIA National e-classroom, AIA National Magazine, Architectural Record, etc.)

Yes. You can obtain HSW hours from any approved course, including online and magazine courses.

Is there a limit to how many credits I can receive by taking online and magazine courses?

Yes, but only from certain publications. There are NO LIMITS on the amount of credits that members may obtain for online and magazine courses throughout the year EXCEPT for Architectural Record courses. The MAXIMUM amount of credits a member may obtain for Architectural Record courses in one year is 8.0 credits. The 8.0 credits may be HSW hours or regular LU's.

Am I supposed to add my LU hours and HSW hours together to meet the requirements?

No. The HSW column on your transcript simply shows how many of your total LU hours are HSW-related. The annual requirement is 18 LU hours, of which eight must be HSW-related. Thus, if you earn eight hours of credit from an HSW-related activity, you will need only 10 more hours (of either HSW-related or non-HSW-related activity) to meet your requirement. Eight hours is the minimum requirement for HSW credit, but that number may be exceeded.

What is the relationship between HSW and state mandatory continuing education requirements (MCE)?

Both the AIA and state licensing boards base their programs on the contact hour. A majority of states require eight contact hours of HSW for their MCE. (Exceptions are Kansas, which has no HSW requirement and Alabama, Louisiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Vermont and West Virginia which requires 12 HSW contact hours.) The AIA/CES program requires eight contact hours of HSW from a structured provider. Some states allow some forms of self-reporting. Due to the quality assurance issues posed by the states, the AIA does not accept self-designed activities for HSW credit.

CAUTION: For members who self-report structured activities for HSW credit, it has become very important that you clearly report all HSW programs and activities separately, ensuring that they are clearly identified. Failure to do so could result in the loss of your license because of noncompliance with state MCE requirements.

How are transcript records kept and how may they be accessed?

Individual transcript records are updated daily on www.aia.org via the World Wide Web. Anyone with an active AIA membership number can access a transcript online. To access your individual transcript, go to www.aia.org/conted. Enter your member number in the space provided and click the "Get Transcript" button. You may then print out an unofficial copy of your CES transcript.

Official CES transcripts are available upon request. A hard copy of the transcript can be faxed or mailed to a member for a fee of $10 per copy. You may make your request in writing, by phone, or by fax to:

2004 AWARD RECIPIENTS

AIA COLORADO DESIGN AWARDS >

The Colorado Chapter of the American Institute of Architects honored architectural excellence award recipients at its annual Design Awards Program, held as part of the AIA Colorado Design Conference at The Cheyenne Mountain Resort in November. This year, the design awards jury chair was renowned architect, Will Bruder, AIA, a self-trained architect who for the last 39 years has explored inventive and contextually architectural solutions in response to site opportunities and user needs. Submittals were received in the following categories: built architecture, unbuilt architecture, interiors or planning.

Honor Awards

Project Name > Head Start School
Firm Name > Faleide Architects, PC
Category > Built Architecture

The Head Start School is an 8400-sq-ft building in which educational and daycare services are provided to the neighboring farm worker housing project as well as to the local community of Center, Colorado. The flexibility and openness of this design fulfill the client's request for an environment that will not only promote learning and teaching, but will also engender a sense of community. It provides a safe space within which students can be fully engaged in learning and growing, in which teachers and administrators can provide guidance and instruction and in which parents and the community can have confidence.

Project Name > 100 Dexter
Firm Name > Semple Brown Design, PC
Category > Built Architecture

The residence is located in one of the most interesting and diversified residential areas in Denver. The owners purchased the property with hopes to preserve a piece of history and demonstrate that an existing home with fundamentally 'good bones' could be adapted to accommodate a contemporary lifestyle. With these precepts in mind, conceptual design focused on stripping back and massaging a 1970's addition to bring the house back to its original 1920's origins.

Merit Awards

Project Name > Clayton Lane Mixed Use Parking Facility
Firm Name > RNL Design & Shears Adkins Architects
Category > Built Architecture

Set within the heart of Cherry Creek North shopping district, the project features over 400 parking spaces wrapped by retail and office uses. Additionally, a basement was designed for the Sears Tire and Battery Center and also to connect to the large underground parking structure serving the remainder of the Clayton Lane development. The project was conceived as a precast concrete garage structure clad with various architectural "layers." These layers provide screening, visual interest and an architectural connection to the eclectic shopping district. Precast panels, steel grillage, glass, brick and stone combine to form the envelope around the functional parking garage. Three different brick colors and a native Colorado buff sandstone provide the material palette for the primary (2nd Street) elevation.

The nearly 600-ft-long building utilizes alternating brick and stone materials to create four individual "volumes" which give appropriate scale to this building as it connects with its adjacent neighborhood. These masonry volumes are articulated with varying cornice elements, large expanses of glass and big openings infilled with steel. The large openings and glass further help reduce the scale of the building. Finally, a glass enclosed elevator and glass wind screens protect the vertical circulation and stair systems for the building while also providing a high level of safety and security.

Project Name > Glacier House
Firm Name > Harry Teague Architects
Category > Built Architecture

The glacier house is a residence for a family of four in an extraordinary mountain setting. It is located at the boulder-strewn mouth of a glacially shaped "hanging" valley in the Colorado Rockies. The house attempts to find a balance between fitting gently and discretely into its immediate surroundings while simultaneously participating in the larger scale of the valley and more distant mountains.

At the smaller scale, roof lines follow the general slope of the site and the cascading floors flow out onto the more subtle undulations of the adjacent terrain. Massing elements maneuver around existing trees while leaping over and including the large glacial boulders. Non-reflective zinc cladding and fractured massing camouflage the buildings in summer green and winter snow.

The house relates on a larger scale to the valley and mountains with the geometry of its plan and window location including distant peaks and geographic formations, but more thoroughly engages its context by participating in its geologic history.

Exterior colors and forms recall the geologic formation of the valley. Dark gray zinc elements with a tessellated surface become granite obstructions and boulders, as the light gray laminar surfaces, the glacial ice, flow through, over and around the obstructions.

While the exterior responds primarily to the results of glacial activity, its process, forces and dynamics inform the interior. The open plan living spaces flow down through and around the more contained static elements of the entry, office and kitchen and then jump across the bridge to the family wing. The laminar skin melts away from the solid objects and the undulating acoustic ceiling recalls that all was once in a liquid state. Wood, granite and an occasional boulder bring the outside in.

In addition, the plan responds to strict programmatic requirements with public, guest and family spaces and their corresponding outdoor extensions carefully located and separated. Triple layered, argon filled high-tech glazing, solar orientation and ultra insulated walls and roofs contribute to energy efficiency.

Project Name > Shadow Ridge Middle School
Firm Name > Klipp A Professional Corporation
Category > Built Architecture

Shadow Ridge Middle School is the first edition prototype designed to replace an existing outdated facility for the Adams Twelve Five Star District. The 150,000-sq-ft building is organized around a curved central spine connecting the three primary functions of the building: academic, administrative and social. The academic areas of the building are divided into two wings. Each wing contains two classroom communities highlighted with colorful canted walls lit from above with clearstory windows.

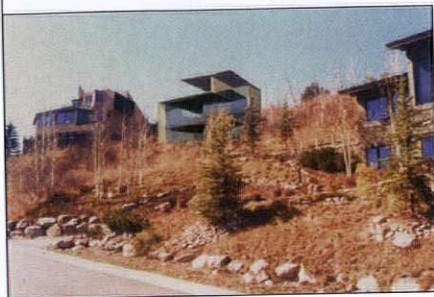

The classrooms are grouped around a central "studio" and support spaces that serve as a central meeting space for presentations, integrated learning activities and computer-based study. The academic wings are located on an east-west access to capitalize on the solar orientation. Western glazing was minimized while daylighting for the Southern classrooms is controlled through the use of cantilevered aluminum grating. The glazing for the northern classrooms was increased to maximize daylighting and equalize natural light levels between the different classroom orientations. All classrooms areas within the building contain natural daylight.

Project Name > Facchini Residence

Firm Name > Faleide Architects, P.C. & Carsten Roth Architekt

Category > Unbuilt Residential

The design represents an architectural transcription of the intrinsic values of this natural and striking setting. The site lies on a mountain top where it prominently overlooks Vail. Rather than impose a pretentious trophy home on this sensitive location, it was designed with a natural architecture of simple lines, local colors and natural materials. The result is a house in which "style" goes away and the quiet exploration of a space for dwelling has room to breathe.

The design carries this idea of vanishing style to its logical limit. Seen from below, not only does the house not jump out of the land, it merely casts a shadow on the hill. The shadow is the dwelling place.

To create this "shadow dwelling," the design calls for building parallel to the height lines of the topography. In addition, reinforced concrete was enriched with local gravel and sand to ensure a blending with the environment. The façade is glass that creates no mirroring effect. Finally, the landscaping blends in with the existing natural landscape, leaving little evidence of human impact other than two small terraces.

Project Name > Pearl Street Lofts

Firm Name > Harvey M. Hine Architects, P.C.

Category > Built Architecture

Eight new residential units were added to the roof of an existing one story commercial building to create this mixed-use project in downtown Boulder. A combination of dynamic building forms and a simple, bold palette of materials and colors give the building human scale and variety. A rooftop courtyard provides primary access to the loft units and also creates a sense of community for the residents.

The lofts borrow from a typically commercial palette of materials of blue-gray and yellow stuccos that complement the existing red brick and accents of aluminum, glass and steel were strategically interspersed. The residential units were conceived as open plan lofts with high ceilings and ample windows offering spatial flexibility. In addition, each living unit has its own private terrace overlooking the Street. Exposed mechanical systems, sliding translucent doors and simple fixtures and finishes have been incorporated throughout, giving the units a refined, finished interpretation of the loft style.

AIA DENVER DESIGN AWARDS >

The Denver Chapter of the American Institute of Architects honored architectural excellence award recipients at its annual Design Awards Program, held in October at the 1770 Sherman Street Event Complex in Denver. This year's jury chair and keynote speaker was renowned architect Jim Olson, FAIA. For Olson, the relationship of a building to its context is as vital as the implicit partnership between architecture and art. His commitment to community is exemplified in his buildings in Seattle, where his work has powerfully altered the city fabric. Submittals received included the following categories: built and unbuilt projects representing architecture, interiors and urban design.

Honor Awards

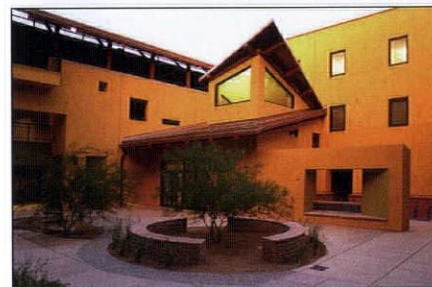

Project Name > 100 Dexter
Firm Name > Semple Brown Design, PC
Category > Built Architecture

The residence is located in one of the most interesting and diversified residential areas in Denver, Colorado. The owners purchased the property with hopes to preserve a piece of history and demonstrated that an existing home with fundamentally 'good bones' could be adapted to accommodate a contemporary lifestyle. With these precepts in mind, conceptual design focused on stripping back and massaging a 1970's addition to bring the house back to its original 1920's origins.

Project Name > Highland District Housing
Firm Name > AR7 Hoover Desmond Architects
Category > Built Architecture

The project complex is designed using the metaphor of a walled city where residents' privacy and protection is paramount, and where a sense of discovery and curiosity is stimulated. Pedestrian passages and inner courtyards separate and organize the project into four buildings to promote different levels of public and private. Along paths of access are interwoven selective vistas to heighten curiosity and appreciation of public versus private, communal versus individual. The building is designed to encourage residents to spend time in communal spaces, increasing the informal learning that occurs through chance encounters.

Inside and out, from massing to materials to colors, the design draws from the Sonoran Desert to reflect the spirit of the Southwest. Design of passages' scale, openings in enclosing building walls, and courtyard geometries, all intend to enhance pedestrian scale and optimize self-shading principle traditional to hot and arid climate of the site. Elevations fronting onto surrounding public streets are finished in campus brick veneer accentuated with colored stucco framing splayed window openings.

Courtyards are differentiated with use of brightly colored stucco to emphasize difference of private courtyard versus public street. Each House's courtyard has a different regional referent (Mission, Chaparral, Kiva) and is of different color to further distinguish among three residential courtyards.

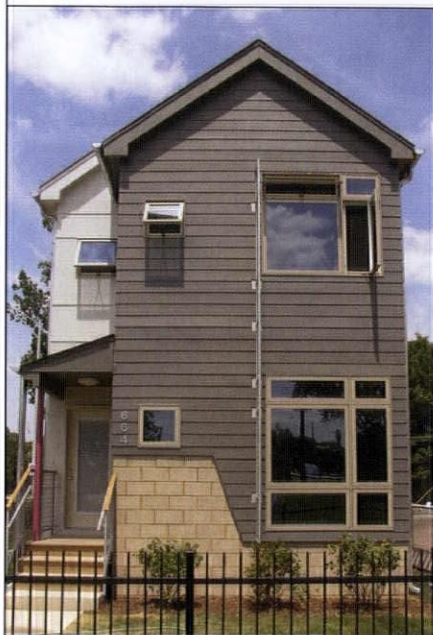

The complex is composed of three residential Houses and an Administration Building. Each House accommodates 238 to 300 residents in double occupancy rooms. Student rooms are arranged in wings surrounding private courtyards. Informal gathering and study is accommodated in great rooms, group study rooms, individual study rooms, and laundry/activity rooms. Two apartments are included in each House for staff and visiting faculty.

The Administration Building includes offices for campus Residence Life at levels two and three, and a conference facility at street level. Meeting rooms open onto a public courtyard shared with food service. A tower hints to Highland Avenue being a significant gateway into the campus.

Project Name > Chicago Green House
Firm Name > Sean Garrett Architecture, LLC
Category > Built Architecture

The Chicago Green House achieves the status of Architecture by manifesting architecture's ability to communicate the implicit intentions of a building program through the language of construction. In the broadest terms, Green refers to the inter-connectedness of all things. The relationship of interior to exterior spaces, the juxtaposition of materials and the manner in which they are assembled and the introduction of color where not typically found break the pattern of expectation and suggest this inter-connectedness and a higher order to which we all are subordinate.

The Chicago Green House confronts the visitor with the contrasting orders of the man-made and the natural. These tactics establish a figure/ground relationship between building and landscape that illustrates the breadth of the current gap between humankind and the sources that sustain us. To that end, the Green House does not represent a solution as much as it signals a wicked problem: our strategies for growth and development - the exploitation of natural resources for personal profit - are not sustainable.

The Chicago Green House achieves the clients' goals by incorporating green, sustainable and energy-efficient building technologies into an affordable, single-family residence that promises to demonstrate that environmentally friendly practices can be incorporated into affordable housing design and construction.

Project Name > St. Mary Catholic School
Firm Name > Faleide Architects, PC
Category > Built Architecture

St. Mary Elementary School is a two-track K-8 school that is the final structure in a Catholic campus arranged on a central axis. The design achieves an economy of form, construction and cost because it layers functions within a set of parallel formal layers creating a simple 30,000 sq-ft rectangle. Pulling these individual layers together into a singular environment is an enfilade - a path suggested by structure and light that cuts through each of the layers along the central axis and beyond the building through four tall window slots in the south wall of the gym.

Perpendicular to the central axis, one of the layers is an interior street that enables a sense of community by creating a gathering place where people may communicate casually. Large glazed openings at its ends extend the street into the outdoor recreation areas.

The design also creates an optimal environment for learning and teaching. Colors are used in and around the classrooms to clearly articulate places for these activities. In addition, a corner of each classroom is pulled out to give the north-facing rooms a view to the mountains in the west, allowing students to glance away from the teaching wall, focus on something in the distance and digest information. Scientists call this the "moment of learning." Finally, the design helps keep students safe: the principal's office is rotated at an angle opposite the classroom walls, allowing for continuous observation of the students from the time they are dropped off to the moment they enter the school.

Project Name > Arnold Loft
Firm Name > Semple Brown Design, PC
Category > Built Interiors

This urban get-away home provides its owners with a high degree of flexibility for entertaining and daily life. It features custom furniture that reinforces the architectural space, a bold palette of colors and materials and efficient space planning to maximize the living area. The consistent themes of the design are authenticity and simplicity. The furnishings, materials and fittings are clean of line and form, with minimal decoration. The custom tables, for instance, utilize the wood and metal of the building's original timber-frame structure, but their forms are purely contemporary.

The organization and design approach of this urban get-away home are structured around a series of contrasts and dualities:

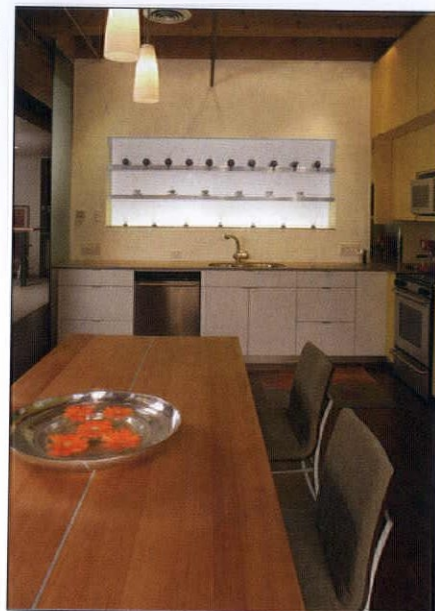

Rustic/Urban: The client's other home is a mountain residence and this environment is intended to provide an urban counterpoint to that residence. In the case of this client, the urban home is the "get-away" residence and they wanted the loft to feel distinctly urban in character.

Historic/Contemporary: The rough timber frame and brick walls of this loft play off against sleek glass, metal and wood panels, as well as brightly hued laminates. The historic structure provides rhythm and texture while the contemporary materials generate energy and color.

Public/Private: The space is divided on a linear spine by a wall of sliding and fixed panels of glass and medium-density fiberboard. This wall separates the public and private rooms of the residence into two zones and provides built-in storage units. The rolling doors and translucent panels create interplay between open/closed, visible/covered and clear/opaque.

Light/Shadow: Only one side of the unit has windows available. The public spaces of the home take advantage of the unit's exterior light, allowing the tempered, borrowed light to pass into the private rooms through translucent panels. Those panels admit shadows and show movement. The kitchen and dining areas include back-lit display shelving for the client's collections of glass objects. All of the unit's structure floats above a dark-stained wood floor.

In essence, this residence's simple spatial diagram sets the stage for an intriguing dialogue between light, materials, colors and surfaces. Its contemporary sensibility provides the change of pace desired by the client - an urban, energetic and warm home-away-from-home.

Project Name > +gallery

Firm Name > Humphries Poli Architects, P.C.

Category > Built Interiors

The +gallery project involved the creation of a small, flexible and distinctive gallery space to exhibit contemporary sculpture, paintings and furniture out of a single-story masonry building with a failing roof structure formerly used for automotive repair.

The chosen concept was the simple insertion of a wood truss running from the front to rear of the building at mid-span of the 2x10s with tension cables extending to each bearing wall. This simple structural solution was painted white in honor of its elegance. Mechanical and electrical needs were also inserted in a direct and simple fashion in order to facilitate the needs of the gallery. A primary HVAC duct parallels the new roof truss, distributing conditioned air throughout the space. Bars of suspended track lighting also run parallel to the masonry walls providing highly flexible lighting.

Masonry walls were restored to a required structural level but were primarily left exposed in their rough condition to become the canvas for art placement. The existing concrete floors were cleaned and stained to represent a memory of the building's history. Moveable partitions were constructed within the space, as well as sparingly attached to the perimeter masonry walls to provide additional exhibition opportunities.

The newly created gallery is a beacon of activity in this recently renewed neighborhood. The simplicity of the engineering solution to restore the infrastructure, initially for financial reasons, is also a strength of the design solution. The redevelopment of this nearly 100-year-old building is a testament to the classic design cliché that "less is more."

Project Name > Stapleton's East 29th Ave. Town Center

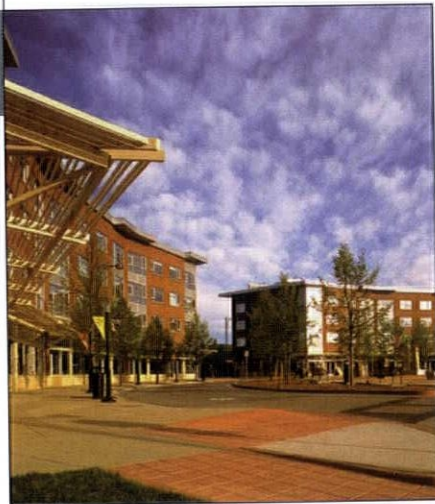

Firm Name > 42|40 Architecture, Inc.

Category > Built Architecture

The focal point of Denver's Stapleton redevelopment Town Center serves its surrounding new urban community with residential, retail and office uses in a high-density complex of 13 buildings. The Town Center responds to Calthorpe & Associates Beaux Arts master plan by forming a street wall with a contemporary and dynamic vocabulary expressing the spirit of this new neighborhood.

Situated at the edge of one of Denver's busiest traffic arteries, the Town Center's primary axis, East 29th Avenue, connects the office and retail district to the residential Crescent buildings facing the Town Green. Two gateway retail buildings form the 29th Avenue entrance with rooflines hinting at the former aeronautical use of this site. Apartments and small-scale commercial offices occupy upper floors above retail along the street front in the three-story buildings and in the four-story Crescents. By introducing urban-scale density, day and night vitality and a neo-industrial aesthetic of brick, glass and steel, the Town Center complements the traditional Denver neighborhood feel of this 4,700-acre development.

The Town Center addresses the Stapleton Development Plan's goals of creating a positive identity unique to Denver and the region, exemplifying high standards of urban design while demonstrating the benefits of sustainability.

Project Name > Glenarm Tower
Firm Name > Semple Brown Design, PC
Category > Un-Built Architecture

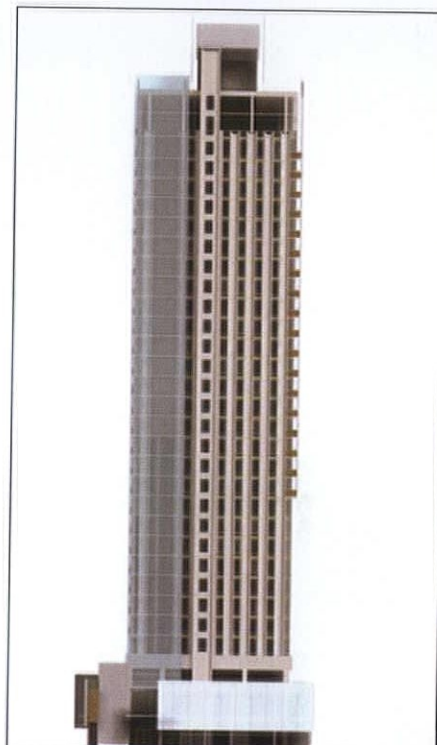

1600 Glenarm, originally known as the Security Life Tower, was one of Denver's original high-rise office buildings. Built in the early 1960's, its modernist design cut sharp lines in the sky by emphasizing both the sleek horizontality of the base and the soaring verticality of the tower. Perched high above the city in the tower's penthouse level was the famed 'Top of the Rockies' dinner club, offering full panoramic views of the mountains. Inevitably though, such innovation has long since been eclipsed by many of downtown's neighboring high-rise buildings and the tower at 16th Street and Glenarm has subsequently been abandoned to nearly a decade of vacancy.

The current climate of adaptive re-use in downtown cities across the country has provided the necessary catalyst for the rebirth of this one-time Denver icon. Capitalizing on the building's prime location on the 16th Street pedestrian mall, directly across from the Denver Pavilions, the building's new owner envisioned its potential as a sophisticated residential apartment tower and a fifth retail anchor to the Pavilions. The design goal then, was to realize the necessary transformation of both function and visual identity, while recapturing and re-imagining the building's original modernist spirit.

The design seeks to unify the base and the tower with a singular gesture: a nearly continuous band of glazing that 'floats' above street level and folds through the retail façade to ascend the full height of the tower. At the building's base, this proposal strips away the heavy stone façade renovation of the 1980's in order to restore the elongated horizontal massing of the original concrete panels, but with a greater transparency and lightness.

These colorful bands of glazing energize the streetscape of both the pedestrian mall and Glenarm Place by revealing the retail interiors and activating the façade with dynamic displays of digital lighting. In an effort to promote a greater pedestrian awareness of the apartment tower above, the building's massing is eroded at the street corner and the formal gestures of the base intersect with the verticality of the tower, thereby establishing a stronger visual linkage between the two forms at street level. The main retail entry also occupies this corner of the building, set beneath a large glass canopy - a literal extension of the tower's proposed 30-story curtain wall above.

These curtain wall banners, located at three corners of the tower above, are the result of the identification of a non-load-bearing column at each exterior corner of the building. The design proposes their surgical removal, along with the cantilevered extension of the floor slabs, to create the opportunity for full-height glazing and panoramic mountain views for the corner apartment units. Not only do the addition of these glazed 'banners' serve to revitalize the presence of the tower on the skyline, they also provide a dramatic interior feature for the residential tenants. Each of these strategic interventions, both retail and residential, work together to reinforce the strengths of the existing building while updating its exterior image and enhancing the functionality of the spaces within.

AIA COLORADO NORTH DESIGN AWARDS >

Honor Awards

The Colorado North chapter of The American Institute of Architects (AIA) recognized its 2004 recipients for design excellence at the Stanley Hotel in Estes Park. The AIA Colorado North chapter covers nine counties in northeastern Colorado and includes Boulder, Greeley, Fort Collins, Loveland and Longmont.

Projects submitted from AIA Colorado North chapter members were judged in categories in Unbuilt Projects, Small Projects (construction costs less than $300,000), Residential Architecture, Historic Renovation and Commercial/Institutional. This year's jury chair was renowned architect John Thompson, AIA, and a principal at Zimmer Gunsul Frasca Partnership in Portland, Oregon.

Project Name > Boulder Shelter for The Homeless
Firm Name > Architectural Manoeuvres
Category > Commercial Large

The main goal for the Boulder Shelter for the Homeless project was to design a place that embodies the essence of "home." By creating a welcoming, safe and empowering environment, residents would have the support system they need to return to self-sufficiency. The design process began with an intensive search to find a location that best serves the homeless population as well as the surrounding community. With the site selected, a committee of shelter staff and neighborhood representatives was formed in order to address existing concerns and identify potential impacts. The committee was able to develop mutually satisfactory solutions during the "good neighbor" process.

The final building design and spatial organization incorporates suggestions from both the "good neighbor" process and from in-depth programming meetings with shelter staff. Increasing resident capacity from 84 to 160 and incorporating functions, previously off-site, required that the new building be easily maintained with minimal operational and life-cycle costs. Currently the shelter saves over $10,000 a year in energy costs through the use of a geo-exchange mechanical system for heating and cooling and by maximizing natural daylighting. The shelter project illustrates a successful community-based process. The process for siting, design and under budget construction of the effective new Homeless Shelter moved a community from a static position of intense neighborhood opposition to broad-based community support from neighbors, local, regional and state stakeholders through volunteerism and financial support.

Project Name > Boulder Community Foothills Hospital
Firm Name > OZ Architecture
Category > Commercial Large

From site planning to artwork, Boulder Community Foothills Hospital offers a nurturing environment, promotes the process of healing and sets a benchmark for sustainable health care design.

An original Boulder valley homestead, this lush meadow adjacent to Boulder Creek was in agricultural use for over 100 years. Within that context, a site strategy and building plan preserve open space and engage the natural environment. The architects confined development to one corner of the site and the floor plan evolved into a "bent U," allowing views through an open-ended courtyard to the creek and foothills beyond. The courtyard opens to tiered terraces landscaped with native plants, seamlessly transitioning patients, families and staff from the health care space to nature. The patient wing faces north, capturing dramatic views of the Flatirons and the opening courtyard to winter sun angles.

Inside the building, medical equipment and nursing stations recede into the background and local art adorns the walls, contributing to a friendly, inviting atmosphere. The camp-like pediatric unit puts children at ease.

Acknowledging evidence that people heal more quickly with familial support, the facility accommodates families throughout. Parents may remain overnight during their child's hospital stay and an innovative Special Care Nursery provides private rooms for newborns who require prolonged attention and an adjoining room for their parents.

As the world's first LEED Hospital (silver status), the facility also provides a healthy physical environment for patients, family and staff. Low-VOC and formaldehyde-free products, teamed with a construction air quality management plan, enhance indoor air quality.

Project Name > Rudofsky Residence
Firm Name > Harvey M. Hine Architects
Category > Small Residential

The Rudofsky Residence is located in Hilltop, a Denver neighborhood. The site is a one-third acre corner lot in a neighborhood dominated by 1960's tract homes. Scattered among the tract homes are beautiful original California-style houses with low-pitch roofs and clerestory windows. The Rudofsky residence is a reinterpretation of the vernacular of the older homes respecting the materials, forms and massing.

Since the house is located on a busy corner, the street facades are simple and fairly solid, creating visual and acoustical privacy for the client. The inner portion of the L-shaped plan is a magnificent sculpture garden including a pool with a sheet-flowing fountain. The south facade facing the courtyard is full-height glass with 12-ft-wide "Nana" doors and steel brise-soleil.

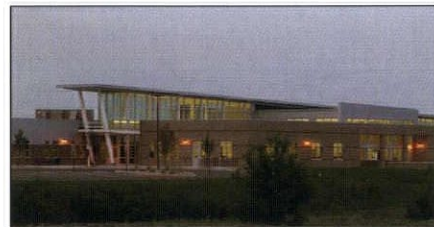

The client, an avid art collector, was looking for an architect with art museum experience. The house plan was developed with a large central "loft" space that functions as art gallery, living room, dining room, computer-animated simulations. The display walls are designed to be flexible, to allow for changing art. Interior finishes, furnishings and details were carefully coordinated.

Project Name > William Smith Alternative High School
Firm Name > Harvey M. Hine Architects, P.C.
Category > Commercial Large

Located on the Aurora School District's Aurora Public Schools Community Campus, this building houses several different programs for students who are accomplishing their high school education outside of traditional methods. During planning, the project was unofficially known as the Aurora Choice School, which indicates what the building's programs are about: choices. The largest program in the building is the William Smith Alternative High School, which provides a high school education in a non-traditional setting. One component of the Alternative School program is teaching parenting skills to expectant new mothers and includes a nursery, where students can both leave their child while they are taking their high school courses and where they can take their parenting classes. A second program, Hartenbach High School—another 'choice'—is a very small high school for students who are working and only able to pursue their education at varied times of the day. This is a self-paced, flexible-schedule program geared to helping these students receive their high school diploma.

The building's key architectural idea is its long, high Main Street, the school's most important space, with the various program elements plugged in on either side. Emphasized on the exterior as a long, gradually rising spine, orthogonal to and containing the front entrance facing directly onto Airport Boulevard, Main Street provides the strong image from the street that the client desired. The program elements located on the south side of Main Street include the Student Center and the art/science pod and they help reinforce that strong image. On the north side, the education pods are attached on a 30/60-degree angle, relating to the layout of the adjacent Pickens Tech Campus and providing a dynamic aspect to the building's massing and layout. Materials were chosen to emphasize education (masonry) and technology (metal and glass) and to relate to the adjacent campus buildings.

Project Name > LoDo Optical

LoDo Optical and Ronald E. Wise, MD Ophthalmology, is located in an old industrial urban "loft" building. The Ophthalmology Clinic has eight exam rooms and is organized in a circular plan for ease of circulation. The style of the interior design is industrial and funky to match the building and the neighborhood. Ronald Wise is an eye surgeon and many of his clients are not happy to be at the clinic; therefore the design goal was to make the architecture fun and uplifting. The clinic has been an enormous success and has beaten all financial expectations.

Project Name > Downtown Boulder Mall Renovation

Firm Name > OZ Architecture

Category > Urban Design

After almost one year of construction and three years of planning, design and public meetings, during which the many political twists and turns nearly scuttled the project, the grand opening for the Downtown Boulder Pedestrian Mall was held on August 6, 1977.

The assignment: to design a 3.2 acre pedestrian zone that would strengthen the beleaguered economic base of the downtown while also improving the environmental quality of the historic but dilapidated commercial district. With most of the downtown merchants in favor of the project, the city took bulldozers to four blocks of Pearl Street, paved it in traditional red brick for design continuity and historic character, planted trees, flowers and evergreen groves and redirected traffic around the core area of the city.

After 25 years of success characterized by heavy pedestrian use, it was clear the mall needed to be refreshed. Members of the original design team were re-assembled to create a new plan that would respect the original design intent of the project. The new plan included the addition of improved site lighting and signage features, identification pylons along Broadway and at the ends of the mall, the installation of a pop-jet fountain, the addition of a shade structure for outdoor performances and informal dining and two new focus areas — a Boulder County map and a sculpted stone water feature. Visual barriers (bus waiting areas) at the ends of the mall were removed to better integrate redeveloped commercial areas to the east and west.

Project Name > Resurrection Fellowship Church Junior High Activity Center

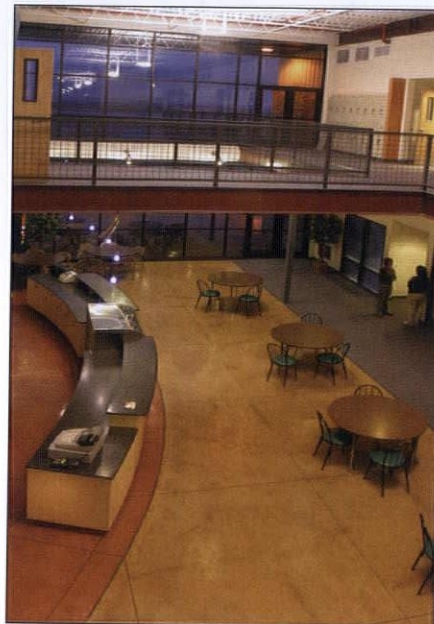

Firm Name > RB+B Architects, Inc.

Category > Interiors

The Resurrection Church Activity Center is designed primarily to house the youth functions of the church, which include a junior high day school and weekly youth group meetings. Secondly, the facility serves as an after-service fellowship space and all-church auditorium/dining space.

The mission of the Resurrection Youth Program is all about accepting kids into Christian fellowship. The goal is to reach the "unchurched" kids in the community who might otherwise be reluctant to enter a "church." The architecture seeks to remove the pre-conceived notions of a low-ceiling church fellowship hall in the basement under the sanctuary. It has a hardness that kids can embrace as they realize that Christian fellowship is not about "long faces" and "pretty clothes," but but it is "alive and active," ready to meet the community and the world. You will rarely hear pipe organ music echoing through the halls during a youth rally. This youth program comes complete with a cutting-edge drama team and rock-and-roll praise band.

Entryways are not designed in a solid manner that "protects" the inside activity from the outside world. Instead, the full-height storefront walls on each end of the atrium allow the outside bystander to view and get caught up in the activity within. An upper level runway becomes an observation deck that allows interaction with activity taking place on the patio outside the café as well as the ball fields and skate board park immediately beyond. Multiple bridges crossing the atrium space foster relational interaction between kids from various vantage points. The atrium space provides settings for intimate conversation without allowing kids to "escape" to secluded corners.

The AIA Colorado South 2004 Design Awards were presented in December at The Cliffhouse in Manitou Springs at the annual holiday awards gala. AIA Colorado South celebrates each holiday season by recognizing a wide variety of contributions to the architectural profession, to the built environment and to the community. AIA Colorado South is comprised of AIA member architects, associates and professional affiliates over an 18-county region of southern Colorado. Over many years, the holiday gala has blossomed into a social gathering of architects, clients, contractors and a broad array of representatives from the building industry throughout the Pikes Peak Region and southeastern part of Colorado. The holiday gala represents the collegial approach to public outreach of the local design professions and the construction industry toward better communities and quality of life for clients and society as a whole. This year's jury chair was Thomas Fischer, AIA, from the University of Minnesota, School of Architecture.

Life in this home centers around a "pavilion" room featuring a 14-ft-high by 50-ft-long window wall viewing the Front Range. Typical living, dining and kitchen functions are integrated without partitions, providing an exciting lifestyle, which serves both the private and social needs of the owner. Although the home is sited in a typical suburban development with minimal side and front setbacks, neighboring houses and the street cannot be seen from any room. A walled entry courtyard provides private views from minor spaces in the residence.

Project Name > Red Rock Valley Residence
Firm Name > Clifford Taylor Architects P.C.
Category > Residential

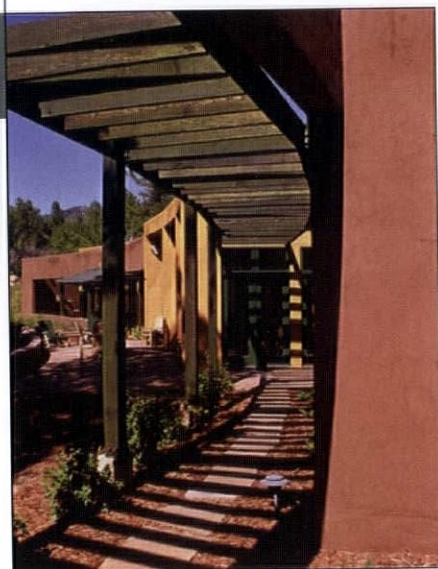

Nestled in a valley of red sandstone monoliths, 15 miles south of Colorado Springs in open pine forest, the Red Rock Valley Residence is a response to unique demands by both client and site.

The owner, accustomed to living on a yacht, requested a minimum of right angles and parallel straight lines. The resulting plan was generated using tangentially joined concentric radii of varying lengths. All transverse walls are drawn from the common center point, creating non-parallel geometries in each space.

An equally controlling program element is the proximity of the site to Colorado Highway 115. Although the highway is approximately a third of a mile east of the property, with no direct line of sight, wheel noise needed to be mitigated, both in the home and in the adjoining outdoor spaces to the west. The home was designed with curved, poured-in-place concrete walls using Insulated Concrete Form technology with minimum penetrations toward the highway.

The insulated concrete forms provide an R value of almost 40. The west side of the residence is lined with an extensive overhead trellis which provides shade from the warm afternoon summer sun. A 14-ft-high entry tower provides passive summer ventilation.

The Red Rock Valley Residence also received a 1999 Award of Excellence from the Rocky Mountain Chapter of the American Concrete Institute.

Fox Meadow Middle School is the signature project of a $60 million bond issue passed in 2001 by Harrison School District No. 2. The new 128,348-sq-ft building was constructed for a cost of $13,044,532 and bid $1 million under budget. The school serves 750 sixth, seven and eight grade students as well as providing a variety of spaces for community use.

The driving concept of the school was to provide a "school in the park" on the heavily vegetated, topographically challenging 28-acre site. The building footprint is derived by minimizing impact on the site by designing linear forms on three existing ridges. Each building "wing" offers views to the outside from every classroom and the majority of staff working areas. The academic wings are two levels with three of the floors providing spaces for each grade with four science labs, classrooms and small group rooms. The remaining fourth floor provides art, technology, languages, and computer labs for all students to use.

The activities wing includes the media center, physical education, music, performance and dining areas. The stage is designed so that performances can be presented to either smaller audiences in the dining area or a larger audience in the gymnasium. The vocal and instrumental music areas also provide a staging area during performances. Building wings and the main entrance radiate about a spectacular two story rotunda at the heart of the school, providing a stimulating meeting space and enhancing the student circulation experience throughout their day.

A middle-aged professional couple of contemporary persuasion wanted to move their art collection and their "family" of two dogs to the Colorado high country. With a modest construction budget, they wished the design of their new home to be sculptural in form, low maintenance and highly private.

Their site atop a high Colorado plateau has dramatic views to the surrounding mountains. The natural vegetation of the gently sloping building site is characterized by a low canopy of pinon and juniper with scattered groups of Douglas Fir.

The site plan organizes two wedge-shaped building elements and extended site walls to form a landscaped entry court and open dog court, both capable of closure.

The primary living spaces are located on the upper level above the coniferous tree canopy to capture long-range views, sunlight and natural ventilation. Using a stepped roof configuration to create a continuous diagonal clerestory, the wedge roof rises to its highest over the living room and its south view orientation, extended to provide shade and cover for an outdoor living deck. A large window grid along the east wall of the family spaces captures morning light and the entirety of the Cimarron Mountain Range, rendering a tree-house quality to the interior experience.

Rammed earth walls, rust-patinae, corrugated steel sheet, cementitious board, a pre-formed metal panel system and commercial storefront glazing systems are examples of choices made for durability and economy.

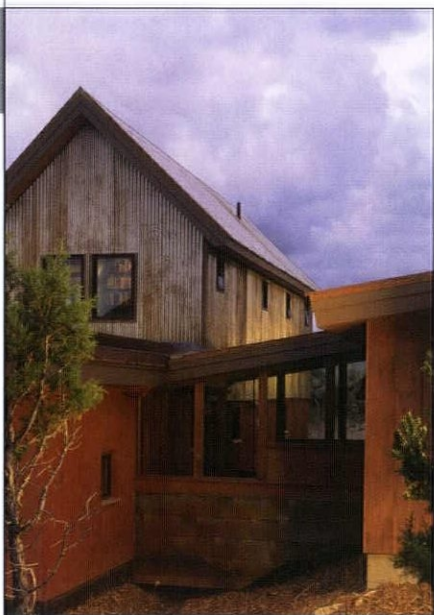

Project Name > Missouri Heights Residence
Firm Name > Graybeal Architects, LLC
Category > Sustainable Design & Construction

This private residence is located in the high-altitude arid foothills outside of Carbondale and was created to meet the client's stringent goals: to create as environmentally friendly a residence as possible within a defined and reasonable construction budget. The work-at-home couple wished to create a "green" residence for themselves and to inspire others. They wanted a home that fit the climate, site and local architectural vernacular, with the expected modern day comforts, thoughtful detailing, durable surfaces and a quality level of interior finishes.

Low-maintenance building materials compatible with the natural stone surroundings were to be used. Each building component's environmental impacts were considered, including: indoor health, manufacturing and delivery processes, recycled content and recyclable qualities. Mountain views to the south were maximized by the passive solar design. Concrete radiant floors provide thermal mass and distribute solar gain throughout the house. Two-foot-thick interior cast-earth walls make bold, unique design elements that divide additional thermal spaces from secondary uses while providing structural support and additional thermal mass for heating and cooling tempering. These walls are instrumental in maintaining the interior temperature swing at five degrees. Straw bale exterior walls and a roof garden provide natural, high insulation values for added comfort. Photovoltaic panels on the roof provide electrical power and, on a good day, run the utility meter backwards. An attached solar greenhouse provides vegetables year round. The garage, with no living area above, is separated but attached to the house by an enclosed bridge element to avoid noxious fumes.

This unique and environmentally friendly home has met and exceeded the client's wishes and creature comfort requirement. From the cast earth walls that flow like a river through the house to the soothing natural light, this residence is a wonderful place.

Project Name > Ferguson Residence
Firm Name > CCY Architects
Category > Residential Over $1 Million

Amid the ambient backdrop of water flowing at 8,500 ft, this project explores multiple yet simultaneous architectural dialogues to promote an inclusive realm of the "both/an" dichotomy. Some relationships addressed by the design include but are not limited to: interior, solid, heavy natural, coarse, traditional, load-bearing, exterior, void, light, man-made, refined, contemporary and free span.

As the primary residence of a married couple, their children and extended family, the home is organized about an east-west axis to maximize both solar and view orientations while allowing nature to pass uninterrupted throughout the compound. Their house is at once a village and a pedestrian street.

Through composed of divergent spatial typologies, "cabins" and "connective tissue," articulated details convey a singular vision and unexpected level of refinement. Careful emphasis was placed on all connections and joinery to highlight the visual link between materials and craftsman.

In terms of programmed spaces, the house is divided into three distinct zones — the main house, the kids' wing and the master suite. In addition to shared common spaces like the kitchen, dining and living room, the Ferguson residence includes an exercise room, natatorium, massage room, painting studio, music studio, game room, bar, wine cellar and theater.

The price-controlled resident housing is 23 mostly attached units that circle around a knoll top, defining a large grassy oval, about 100 ft wide and 200 ft long, which serves as a play area and passive open space.

Each unit features a deep front porch and a six-ft-wide sidewalk that encircles the "green," creating a promenade for strolling, walking pets, greeting neighbors. No vehicles are permitted into the green area but are intercepted at the auto sheds along the street.

The exterior character of each unit derives from its own palette of indigenous materials, historically used in the region: shingles, board and batten, corrugated siding, bead porch ceiling soffits.

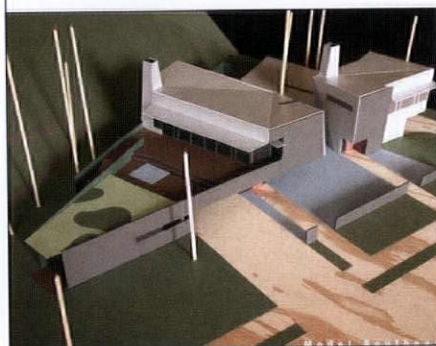

Paint colors further individualize the units, which come in four types, from studios of 600 SF to three-bedroom units of about 1,400 sq ft, plus optional basement, a total of about 22,000 sq ft.

Project Name > UR 2 House

Firm Name > Willis Pember Architects, Inc.

Program: uR2 house, or urban/rural/duplex is a duplex development for a retired couple. The clients will occupy an owner's unit, while the smaller half will be sold to support the project's financing. An affordable ADU apartment is included as a local housing requirement.

Site: The site is located between an arterial suburban street on one side and a rising butte on the other. Panoramic views of Aspen Mountain to the South and sharply vertical views of a butte to the North present themselves. Distant views and panoramic view planes dramatically unfold as site elevation is increased. There is inherent tension between the urban and natural features of the site given the close proximity of each.

Concept: The project seeks to embrace outdoor living and its "topographical reach" beyond the limits of the property lines. The experience of near/far and indoor/outdoor are intentionally blurred to place occupants in a more ideal (reciprocal) relationship to the natural and urban realms. Telescoping site walls establish both hard property edges as well as means by which to simultaneously connect the living spaces and screen middle scale "noise."

Formal Resolution: The house is created out of two organizational geometries, horizontally layered. The first floor geometry responds to the street edge and then necessary programmatic requirements of the ground floor/ground plane. A central water court creates a compresses entry experience and interior circulation space for each of the units. The second floor organizational geometry seeks to connect the living levels with the panoramic views of the site. Outdoor living space in front of the owner's unit creates a dislocated ground plane via a planted roof, pools and terraces.

The rec. center is located on a sloping, 18-acre municipal park in a mountain resort community. The park is adjacent to an existing K-12 school campus composed of multiple buildings, a deep river valley and access road; all interlaced by a network of ski and hiking trails and bridges.

The recreation facility houses an NHL regulation ice rink with seating, indoor and outdoor swimming pools and a community youth center. The architecture connects with the historic language of the Rocky Mountains.

The three-level 81,800-sq-ft building is divided into three discrete floor plates and building volumes, each surmounted by gable or shed roof forms. The floor plates and building volumes correlate to the three major program spaces. The building footprint is shaped to minimize impact to the site while building height and massing are arranged to create a low profile to preserve existing mountain views. The ice arena and swimming pool are each one level, connected by a three-level core that accommodates support spaces and building circulation. The youth center is located on the upper level of the central element. The central core provides two public entries at the main and upper levels of the facility. Lobbies are connected vertically by a circular stair and elevator and visually with a 30-ft-high climbing tower. Building construction consists of exposed steel frame superstructure and roof with reinforced concrete block walls. Exterior finishes and cladding material include stone masonry, metal wall panels, glazing systems and metal roof panels. Prefabricated metal building technology is employed to minimize costs. Structural framing and duct work are exposed to create visual design value.

The site is a riverfront bluff overlooking the Roaring Fork River and some fine gold-medal trout fishing waters. A trail winds down to the riverbank, and terraces overlook the river, opening from all major rooms, with multiple French doors and a screened porch.

The house was designed in three pods: master suite, living areas and guest rooms/garage, with each pod connected by a transparent all-glass link. Moving from one pod to another is like walking outside and entering a separate building. Generous window openings, French doors and a sense of transparency mark the private side toward the river. The more public side toward the street is closed and marked by small windows that flank a central porch and two antique entry doors.

The exterior of the house is like that of traditional "salt boxes," abstracted without trim, fascias or corner boards, to their basic volumes, and punctuated by window openings and the knife-edge roof eaves. "Green" techniques and materials were incorporated throughout the construction process, including donating and relocating an existing log cabin on the site.

Project Name > Two Creeks Residence
Firm Name > Bill Poss & Associates
Category > Residential Over $1 Million

Situated on the side of a ski slope, this residence blends mountain character with the contemporary aesthetic of the client. Spaces were laid out as a series of small pavilions flowering off a large, central living area. The residence was partitioned into a master bedroom wing, an office, a central common living area, a guest suite and a garage and media pavilion.

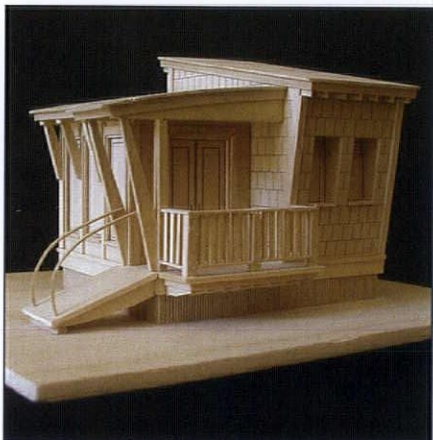

Each of the areas conveys simplicity and calmness, paying attention to the flow of the materials along and within the structure. Stone walls ebb and flow around the perimeter. The wood trim wraps the structure inside and out, and the central area—with its down-slope, curved sweep—is offset with the harder-pitched roofs that define the outer edges of the residence.

Project Name > Writer's Studio
Firm Name > John Muir Architects, Inc.
Category > Un-Built Architecture

This 195-sq-ft unbuilt writer's studio will be nestled near Utah's Arches National Park. Because the structure will be placed within a delicate ecosystem, it was designed with a piered foundation to minimize site impact. Many of the materials were reclaimed from existing onsite historic structures.

The inspiration for the studio originated in a children's play structure designed and built for a Habitat for Humanity fundraiser. The challenge was to re-interpret the aesthetics of the play structure in a different design context. What evolved is a simple and playful design that is visually creative and respectful of the desert landscape.
